CINCINNATI, FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 7, 1860.

The last number of the Westminster Reeiew contains an article on this work, from which we make the following extract:

which we make the following extract:

A competent English historian of the rise and progress of this impulsive and powerful nationality has long been wanting. An American author, Mr. Parke Goodwin is doing his best to render the future appearance of the British author superfluous. One volume only of Mr. Goodwin's projected history is published; but if the residuary volumes should resemble the present, the completed work will, we predict, be found an adequate record, even by an advanced student, of the resources and development of the national life of France.

For his historical construction Mr. Good-

For his historical construction Mr. Good-win's principal reliance has been on the great collection of Bouquet (Rerum Gallicarum et win's principal reliance has been on the great collection of Bouquet (Rerum Gallicarum et Francicarum Scriptores, twenty volumes folio, 17:38). He has, in addition, consulted the more modern writings of Dubos, Montesquieu, Sismondi, De Petigny, Fauriel, Guizot, and others; he is familiar with the Greek and Roman historians, as, indeed, with classical literature generally, he is acquainted with various historical, philosophical and ethnological works, published in France, England, Germany and his own country, and apparently possesses an available knowledge of some languages which are only exceptionally studied. The references in the foot-notes are copious and punctual. The narrative portion of the work is admirably done. It is condensed, yet is sufficiently circumstantial as to be thoroughly interesting. The reflective or expository part is deserving, perhaps, of equal commendation. We do not, however, recognize in Mr. Goodwin an original or powerful thinker. His remarks are just and sensible; his historical judgment generally sound; his interpretation of the past wise and sympathetic. More than this we can not find in his pages. The composition is animated, often glowing; and the style, when most rhetorical, seldom overfine, though we sometimes meet with a superfluous "rosy dawn," or "roseate glory," or with "silvery rays," that shine with rather an equivocal splendor.

Lady Byron's Will Admirred to Pao-sate—Her Charitable Bequests.—The will of the late Lady Byron, who died in En-gland, May 16, 1860, in her sixty-sixth year, has been admitted to probate. She was the relict of the poet Byron, who died as long ago as the year 1824, and was in her own right Baroness Wentworth. In addition to $300,000 personalty she was possessed of a number of valuable estates. She has left a considerable amount for various charitable purposes: but the most remarkable item in purposes; but the most remarkable item in the will is the following. She gives "to Charles Follen, of Boston, United States, £300 (about $1,500) to assist him in the difficulties he will have to contend with in his disinterested advocacy for the rights of the colored race."

the colored race."

The Baroness has devised the estate of Oxneyfield, situated at Darlington, in the county of Durham, to her grandson, Ralph Gordon Noel King, the son of her daughter Ada and the Earl of Lovelace, which is entailed upon his issue, and, in default thereof, then to her grandson, Viscount Ockham; and that the inheritor of the estate shall use and accuire by royal license, the surname of that the inheritor of the estate shall use and acquire by royal license, the surname of Milbanke, which was her ladyship's maiden name, her father being the late Sir Ralph Milbanke, Bart., who, upon the death of his brother, Thomas Noel, late Viscount Wentworth (title now extinct), acquired by signmanual also the name of Noel. To her said grandson, Ralph Gordon, she also leaves a legacy of £25,000. To her granddaughter, Anne Isabella Noel King, she leaves a life interest in all her other estates, and on her decesses to be divided among her children.

ANOTHER AMERICAN ALGIDES-A RIVAL OF Du. Wissuip .- The editor of the Norfolk (Va.) Examiner writes to a New York paper:

I have seen notices in regard to Dr. Winship, who, it is stated, shoulders with ease a barrel of floar, and can lift 1,100 pounds, &c. Without any design to disparage the claims of Dr. Winship to the prestige of great strength and muscle and constitution, I think it proper to state that there is another man in this country who is the Doctor's equal in point of strength. His name is Lewis R. Stem, of Connocogeague, Maryland, now a resident of Columbia, Pa. He is about twenty-two years of age, weighs less than Dr. Winship, and, if challenged by the latter gentleman, will, doubtless, readily accept a proposition to a trial of strength.

Mr. Stem is a remarkable young gentleman, in other regards, besides being the equal, or superior, of the "Yankee Doctor." as he is familiarly called. He can play almost any tune with no instrument but a peach-leaf; can turn ten summersets backward, hand-running, and as many forward, &c., &c., which the "Yankee Doctor" can not do. a.) Examiner writes to a New York paper gland, toward the close of the last century, mainly to stimulate the fragality of poor children. But Rev. Henry Duncan, of Ruthwell, England, really established the system. His parish was the most unlikely place in the world for success, as there were no manufactures, and every body was as poor as possible. The first year's receipts were less than $1,000, but the fourth year nearly $5,000 were deposited. "Penny Banks" seem to prosper in England. But the wealthier manufacturing places do not contribute according to expectation. Military savings banks, for soldiers alone, have been exceedingly useful. And it is proposed by the use of money orders drawing interest, to make the London Postoffice a central savings institution.

EXTRAORDINARY SUBGICAL OPERATION.—A young man in Richmond, Va., having become insane, half palsied, and utterly worthless, from severe wounds on the head, the Enquirer thus relates a skillful surgical operation that restored him: "Before the operation commences, imagine the condition of the patient—the idiotic expression of the eye, unvarying condition of the pupil; the palsied, nerveless hand; the shrunken features; the pale and hollow cheek—avincing to the beholder only an intensity of suffering. The operation begins. The hone is laid bare by a crucial incision, and after very little loss from hemorrhage, the trephne is anxiously applied; down, down it goes until it touches the dura mater, and—blessed result—on the withdrawal of the instrument, reason has again resumed her seat of empire, reason has again resumed her seat of empire, the idiotic stare has fled, the palsied hand re-sumed its "cunning," and facial expression its varying but conscious sway!" PROGRESS OF THE ASSAULT TELEVRAPH.

"Oh! yes, I dare say she would marry again, Did you ever know a widow in your life, especially a young one, that didn't marry again, if she had a chaoce? And they always get a chance, too, it seems. For my part, I don't see what the men race after them so for!"

them so for!"
The above remark set me to thinking.
The above remark set me to thinking. The above remark set me to thinking. Who is it about? Oh, as nice a little body as you would want to know. A quiet, modest little woman, whose only fault is in being a young widow. Poor soul! She can't help that! People throw it up to her, though, and cast it in her very teeth, with inhumanity. To be sure, her husband has been dead these five years; but what difference does that make? She is not so hardhearted as to expect ever to be happy againis she? What does she want to get married again for, I'd like to know? One man is enough for any woman.

A man is different. He can do as he pleases. The oftener he is married the better. Suppose she is only tweaty-three or four? All the more reason why she should be watched, and pecked at, and sniffed at, by all the cross old women, with grown-up single daughters, and all the old young ladies who set up for themselves.

Sometimes the men, even, indulge in a

Sometimes the men, even, indulge in a fing at young widows; but they needn't mind them, for such are always old fogies or "disappointed lovers" who do it. Hug the assurance to your bosoms, ladies, that, as a assurance to your bosoms, ladies, that, as a general thing, a young widow is an "object of interest" to the men. And as it is said of the ladies, that the approbation and esteem of the other sex is their chief desire, why they need not care for the malicious remarks of the ill-natured of their own; knowing that every true woman's heart, whether matren or maid, will sympathize with you, if you are a young widow.

Another Monster Balloon in Progress or Construction.—Mr. C. Coe, of Rome, N. Y., is now constructing a monster balloon, with which he hopes to succeed in his project of grial navigation. In September last, while endeavoring to disengage a balloon from a tree, he met with an accident, in consequence of which he subsequently suf-fered amputation of one of his arms. In April last he commenced work on his man-moth balloon, which will be finished in about two weeks. There are about 8,700 yards of cloth in this serial ship; over this is the net-ting, weighing 900 pounds. The balloon when inflated is 208 feet high; its diameter when inflated is 208 feet high; its diameter is 118 feet, and to fill it requires 1,731,000 oubic feet of gas. The car and hasket are 39½ feet in circumference and 13 in diameter, made of rattan, and to be carpeted with Brussels carpet, and seats to be on the inside similar to those in an omnibus. Over twenty-two miles of sewing have been done on this balloon; its lifting power is over 63,000 pounds. Mr. Coe intends to go to St. Louis or some other Western city, from whence he will proceed East by means of that easterly current he is so sanguine of finding. current he is so sanguine of finding.

A HARD HIT AT THE ATTORNEYS.—During the sitting of a court in Connecticut, not long ago, on a very cold evening, a crowd of lawyers had collected around the open fire that blazed cheerfully on the hearth in the bar-room, when a traveler entered, benumbed with cold; but no one moved to give him room to warm his shins, so he leaned back against the wall in the back part of the room.

Presently a smart young limb of the law addressed him, and the following dialogue

"You look like a traveler?" "Wall, I suppose I am; I came all the way from Wisconsin a foot, at any rate." "From Wisconsin! What a distance to ome on one pair of legs!"
"Wall, I doue it, snyhow."
"Did you ever pass through hell, in any of your travels?"

"Yes, I've been through the outskirts."

"I thought likely. Well, what are the manners and customs there? Some of us would like to know."

"Oh, you'll find them much the same as in this place-the lawyers sit nearest the fire.' AN ADROIT MODE OF ESCAPING A HUSBAND'S

An Adroit Mode of Escaping a Husband's Pribecutions.—At a late ball in Paris, a very stout gentleman, proprietor of a bad catarrh, and a very charming wife, insisted, very inconveniently, at the close of a polka, that madam should return to the bosom of her family. "Never mind," said she to her partner, "ask me to dance in the quadrille all the same—I will find a way to stay for it." Slipping out while the sets were forming, she went into the gentleman's dressing-room, found her husband's hat and threw it cut of the window. Then returning, and requestthe window. Then returning, and request-ing her spouse to first find his hat and then ing her spouse to first find his hat and then call the carriage, she accepted partners for the next six dances, quite sure of two hours before the hat could be found. Put Parisian wives against the world for cleverly deceiving their husbands.

CURIOUS REQUEST OF A NECROMANCER.—
The Prussian papers narrate a pleasing incident which recently occurred at an exhibition of necromancy in Koenigsberg. During an interval, a gentleman rose in the body of the hall, and, pointing to a lady who sat on another bench, addressed the conjuror as follows: "Herr Basch, your next trick, as I see from the show-bill, is to make any person disappear that is pointed out to you. There CURIOUS REQUEST OF A NECROMANCER .disappear that is pointed out to you. There also my runaway spouse, with her paramour. Pray make them disappear." The lady turned alternately pale and red, and the couple left amid the roaring laughter of the public.

A Young American Transition Paris. The Paris correspondent of the Boston Traveller says that Miss Dinda, a daughter of the U.S. Consul at Leghorn, carried off a prize at the French Couservatory the other day. She has been studying under Mons. Beanvallet, of the French Comedy, and is said to possess great talents as a tragic actress. Mme. Ristori has as high an opinion of her histrionic abilities as Mons. Beauvallet. She plays in Italian and French, and thinks of appearing on the stage in Paris next winter. A Young American Tracedienne in Paris.

A MONUMENT IN LONDON TO THE HEROES OF A MONUMENT IN LONDON TO THE HEADES OF THE CRIMEA.—A menument is in the course of erection in Waterloo Place, Pall Mall, London, in honor of the guards who fell in the Crimea. Upon a pedestal of granite, motto, Tria junctain uno, is erected a group of three, in the costumes of the Coldstream, Grenadier and Fusilier Guards. The figures are between eight and nine feet high, and of bronze. Behind them is a trophy of real guns, from Sebastopol, with shot and shell.

Another Nun Canard.—A correspondent of the Troy (N. Y.) Areas says that among the visitors at Saratoga Springe is a runaway nun. "Sick and tired of confined life, she ran away from the cloister, and is now here with her friends, recuperating her health—a contrast which must be sensibly felt. Her face is really beautiful, and she attracts no little attention by her modest, unassuming behavior."

An American Chain Against Touria.—Among the passengers by the Fersia for Liverpool is a Mr. Stuart, who is on his way to St. Petersburg to prosecute a claim, on the part of Mr. Perkins, against the Russian Government, of from $500,000 to $400,000 The demand, we believe, has been once adjudicated by umpires, and the award accepted by the claimant.

PAPERS PUBLISHED IN THE UNION AND CARADA.—There are published in the United States and Canada many a 000 newspapers. More than one half are worklies; the remain-der are divided between bemi-weeklies, tri-weeklies and dailies.

Singular fate of the Celtic world! Of its two great divisions, one, although the least unfortunate, is perishing, wearing away, or, at all events, losing its language, costume, and character—I allude to the Highlanders of Scotland and the people of Wales, Cornwall, and Brittany. Here we find the serious and moral element of the race, which seems dying of sadness and soon to be extinguished. The other, filled with inexhaustibleness of life, multiplies and increases despite of every thing; it will be folt that I speak of Ireland, Ireland! poor elder child of the Caltic race, so far from France, her sister, who can not stretch out her arm to protect her across the waves—the Isle of Saints, the emerald of the sea, all fertile Ireland, whose men grow like grass, to the terror of England, in whose ear is daily shouted, "they are another million"—land of poets, of bold thinkers, of John Scotus Erigens, of Berkley, of Toland—land of Moore, land of O'Couneli—land of the brilliant speech and lightning sword, which, in the senility of the sword, still preserves the power of poetry. The English may laugh when they hear, in some obscure corner of their towns, the Irish widow improvising the coronach over the corpse of her husband—pleurer a I Irlandaise (wailing after the manner of the Irish) is with them a bye-word of scorn. Weep, poor Ireland, and may France weep as well, as she beholds at Paris, over the gate of the asylum which receives your sons, that harp which asks for succor. Let us weep at our inability to give back the blood which they have shed for us.

In vain, within less than two centuries, have 400,000 Irish fought in our armies. We must witness the sufferings of Ireland without uttering a word. In like manner has we well ong forgotten and the Scotch mountaineer will soon have disappeared from the face of the eart. The Singular fate of the Celtic world! Of its like manner have we long forgotten and neglected our ancient allies, the Scotch—and the Scotch mountaineer will soon have disappeared from the face of the earth. The Highlands are daily unpeopled. The conversion of small boldings into large farms, which ruined Rome, has destroyed Scotland. Estates may be found ninety-six square miles in extent, others twenty miles long and three broad: so that the Highlander will soon only exist in history and in Sir Walter Scott's novels. When the tartan, plaid and claymore are seen passing, the inplaid and claymore are seen passing, the in-habitants of Edinburg run to the door to gaze at the unusual sight. The Highlander expatriates himself and disappears, and the baggipe awakens the mountains but with

We return, we return no more THE EARL AND THE HIGHWAYMAN.—Hesita-The Earl and the Highwayman,—Hestia-tion is a sign of weakness—for inasmuch as the comparative good and evil of the dif-ferent modes of action about which we hes-itate are seldon equally balanced, a strong mind should perceive the slightest inclina-tion of the beam with the glance of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the tion of the beam with the glance of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the preponderance will be very minute, even though there should be life in one scale and death in the other. It is recorded of the late Earl of Berkley, that he was suddenly awakened at night in his carriage by a highwayman, who, forcing a pistol through the window and presenting it close to his breast, demanded his money—exclaiming at the same time that he had heard his lordship had boasted he never would be robbed by a single highwayman, but that he should now be taught the contrary. His lordship putting his hand into his pocket, replied, "Neither would I now be robbed if it were not for that fellow who is looking over your shoulder." The highwayman turned his head, when his lordship, who had drawn a pistol from his pocket instead of a purse, shot him dead on the spot.—Lacon.

vicinity on the 5th inst., says: But the most extraordinary feature in the storm, as before intimated, is the almost fabrulous quantity of water that fell in the short period of thirty-six hours. The meteorological register kept at this place gives upward of twenty-five inches in depth in that short period. The greatest amount heretofore given by the same record (kept for eighteen years) is eight inches in a similar period.

A VALUABLE PRESENT FROM THE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA.—In December, 1858, J. W. Tucker, a California jeweler, sent to the Emperor of Russia some fine specimens of gold-bearing quartz. Recently he received from the Emperor, as a token of thanks, a magnificent and massive gold ring, enriched with an oblong amethyst, surrounded by ten diamonds weighing a carat each. The gold of the ring is from the Ural Mountains. The amethyst is oblong, and of the purest color. It has been pronounced, by an expert, worth as much as any ruby of three times the size.

number, reviews John G. Saxe's last volume of Poems, The Money King, &c., using the following language: Throughout the entire book we are obliged to say "all but." If Mr. Saxe, however, be young, in his future efforts he may bridge over the chasm—very narrow, but also very deep—which separates him from excellence. Many a man who has started as an imitative wersifier in his first volume (to name poets no less mighty than Byron and Shelley), has in his second one risen to individuality, and taken his place among those who are followed when living, and are crowned after death.

A CITY MISSIONARY NEARLY ROBBED BY A Woman,-"Father Cleveland," a well-known city missionary of Boston, and a man stricken in years, gives, in his journal for the past year, the following account of an attempted robbery: A bold, athletic woman came into a room where I was assisting a poor family, demanded help, and used all her muscular strength to detain me—thrust her hand into my pocket, which, happily, was empty. Two women saw this, but were afraid to interfere for my rescue. At length I succeeded in freeing myself from her grasp. Praise be to God who gave me strength adequate to the occasion.

A SANGUINARY FAMILY FIGHT-ALL THE A SANGUINARY FAMILY PIGHT—ALL THE PARTICIPANTS WOUNDED.—A long-standing fend has existed between two brothers named William and Henry Stuart, brothers-in-law of a Mr. Ackles, residing in Pike County, Ill.
